Here and Now

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Levon Johnson
President/CEO
ljohnson@elkhart.org

At our Annual Meeting in March, we shared that our theme for the year is Right Here. Right Now.

In the months since, we have used that focus through everything we do.

In each council meeting, at every event, and every educational program, a part of the sought-after outcomes is for attendees to be able to state from their own experiences and perspectives that Greater Elkhart is the place to be right here and right now.

But what if Right Here, Right Now was not said or written as an exclamatory statement but posed as an inquisitive question: Why Here, Why Now?

Would we focus on the people and the power of positive relationships in our region?

Is it how the connection with like-minded individuals or the diversity in our communities leads to amazing outcomes that give people the feeling of being welcomed and a sense of belonging?

It could be that the investment in outdoor activities and engaging events is what makes Right Here, Right Now come alive.

Maybe people would point to how the amenities and events are the glue that brings our region together in organic ways that lead to coincidental collisions that spark new interactions and lead to exciting new adventures, both professionally and personally.

No matter what corner of Greater Elkhart you drive through, you are seeing new development and redevelopment take shape.

It could be that people would point to all of the ways this type of investment is leading to an increased quality of place and quality of life for everyone, regardless of zip code. Right Here, Right Now could be as specific as a particular address or block.

Maybe the core of Why Here, Why Now? is the giving nature of our communities.

Our giving nature goes beyond seeing philanthropy as giving money to a cause or organization and is more about a neighbor helping a neighbor or how we support and mentor each other.

Others might say that the collaborative environment of Greater Elkhart creates opportunities for everyone to have a shot at achieving their own individual definition of success.

It is about being open to the realization that working together leads to far greater community outcomes than trying to forge ahead alone.

It might be that Right Here, Right Now serves only as the catalyst for the visionaries in our community to build upon.

This would mean that here and now is the foundation for what's next and who wouldn't want to be a part of that?

As our Young Professionals Council is gearing up for their Annual Intrigue, Inspire, Ignite Elkhart County Dinner, we were discussing what the common thread should be for the seven speakers.

Knowing that the majority of the audience will be young professionals who may still be deciding where to settle in and call home, the decision was made to focus the evening on Why Here, Why Now.

We asked that very question to members of our councils and you can see some of the answers in the center spread of this edition of Leading Business.

With no leading or prompting we simply asked, "Why is now the time to be in Greater Elkhart?"

This allowed the respondents free range to interpret the question and provide an answer from their own view and experiences.

Our hope is that you will also take the time to answer the question and be armed and ready to provide it when someone you run into asks you the same question.

In the meantime, thank you for being part of what makes Right Here, Right Now such a great time to be in Greater Elkhart.

As I sat on the new Jackson Rooftop, contemplating the City displayed around me, I was inspired by the examples of vision becoming reality, evidenced throughout. From the River District, to the Tolson Center, to the new urban residences and businesses, it's filled with new endeavors. I have lived in this city for my entire life, and it has never been as aware as it appears to be right now, that it is a gem at the confluence of rivers. It is more livable, more progressive, more compassionate than ever. This community is launching itself to a whole new level, and this is the time to engage!

Hugh Johnson, J2 Marketing

Now is the time to be in Elkhart because of all of the changes occurring in and around downtown. These are exciting times for the community; the beautification of the city is amazing. The redevelopment on Jackson, Benham, Woodland Crossing, and Concord Mall are just the beginning.

Monica Abair, Goodwill Industries of Michiana, Inc.

The Greater Elkhart Region is an exciting place to be right now, and a key factor driving this momentum is our robust fiber optic connectivity. These high-speed fiber corridors have become critical infrastructure, in parallel with our transportation network, that we all benefit from. Greater Elkhart stands at a dynamic crossroads of opportunity, where strong infrastructure (including high-speed fiber optic connectivity, well-maintained roads, and accessible airports) creates a thriving environment for growth and innovation.

Brandon Liggett, ChoiceLight

Now is the right time to be in Elkhart because with the investment in the River District and housing in the area, we will import less workers from beyond our county increasing the local labor supply as well as improving our local economy through taxes and support of small local businesses.

Daniel Gartee, Orthopedic and Sports Medicine Center of Northern Indiana

Now is a thrilling time to be part of the Greater Elkhart Area, where dedicated local leaders and community members are making a real difference by investing their time and resources to foster growth and innovation. Their commitment not only supports local organizations but also creates abundant business opportunities through collaborative efforts. Additionally, the revitalized downtown area has become a vibrant hub for gathering, whether for family outings, networking events, or productive business meetings.

Now is a great time to be in Greater Elkhart for several reasons. The first being economic growth. Elkhart has seen a resurgence in economic development, particularly in industries like manufacturing and technology. The region is home to a growing number of businesses, offering employment opportunities and attracting talent. The second reason would be affordable living. Compared to larger cities, Greater Elkhart offers affordable housing and a lower cost of living, making it an attractive place for families and professionals looking to stretch their dollar without sacrificing quality of life. There is also a great deal of cultural and recreational expansion. The community has invested in enhancing local amenities. There are revitalized downtown areas, an increase in festivals, and new arts and cultural venues. Parks, rivers, and lakes in the area provide a great backdrop for outdoor activities like boating, hiking, and camping. Finally, there are many educational opportunities. The presence of local colleges and strong educational programs, both in public schools and private institutions, adds value for families. Institutions such as Ivy Tech and others offer educational and professional growth opportunities.

Now is the time to be in greater Elkhart because employment, entertainment, and education are all on the rise.

Elkhart is on the move in all the right directions! Increased housing, lower cost of living, terrific quality of place assets like a vibrant downtown enhanced by additions in The River District and exciting additions and events at Wellfield Botanic Gardens make Elkhart a fantastic place to live, work, and play!

Are? Now? e in Greater Elkhart?

I believe that there are many aspects that make Greater Elkhart an attractive location for new graduates, those looking to start or grow a family and professionals looking to relocate.

We have a strong business environment, a supportive Community Foundation and elected officials that are committed to the mission of making this city a premier destination.

Beacon Health and Aquatic Center, Ethos, Tolson Center and the Lerner Theatre are just a few of the offerings that have been provided by our community's commitment to philanthropy and service. There are personal growth opportunities, numerous career paths to embark upon and many not-for-profit organizations that support the needs of our community.

Brandon Arnold, Stifel, Baker's Nook Café

As someone born and raised in Elkhart, I've never been prouder to be part of this community. Between the work being done to promote interaction with all residents, growth and restoration of the downtown area, the support our local business community receives, how engaged our school corporations are, seeing leadership that is intentional with working together and having a focus on doing the right thing - this is the time to be here, and to get involved.
